Webinar No. 6 - Discrimination Protections and Promising Practices in Federally Assisted Emergency Management

- Date: 01/12/2017
- Time: 1:00pm ? 2:30pm Eastern

Webinar Series Background

In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina and subsequent catastrophic events, the Federal government learned many critical lessons about how recipients of federal financial assistance engaged in emergency management activities can more effectively ensure that all members of the community receive access to information and services.

On August 16, 2016, the Departments of Justice, Homeland Security, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development and Transportation issued the first-ever, joint agency guidance to state and local governments and other entities involved in emergency management, services, and information-sharing that addresses nondiscrimination protections on the basis of race, color, and national origin.

The goal of the joint agency guidance is to promote collaboration with and inclusion of all communities that may be affected by emergencies. Presenters will discuss Title VI nondiscrimination protections, its applicability (the distinction between federally assisted v. federally conducted programs and activities), and promising practices to ensure compliance in emergency preparedness, response, and recovery. Presenters will also discuss the how legal aid organizations can help in emergencies and disasters. Lastly, a representative from an advocacy group will share the group's experience in ensuring nondiscrimination in post-emergency recovery efforts and what more should be done.

Upcoming EJ IWG Webinars

Title:Whole Community Disaster Planning: Inclusive Approaches to Recovery and Preparedness

- Date: 2/09/2017 from 1:00?2:30pm EST
- Purpose: This webinar will discuss whole community planning efforts to improve preparedness and recovery for all stakeholders, especially those unfamiliar with local planning processes.

Subject: agenda for today's 11am EJ IWG Climate Impacts Subcommittee mtg

Hi All, please let me know if there are other agenda items for today's 11am call in addition to the following:

1. Revisit FY17 products and status updates from the working groups (see below)
2. Discuss APHA Conference abstract on this Subcommittee's efforts. As Chris sent previously, the theme of the annual meeting that will be held Nov 4-8 in Atlanta is Creating the Healthiest Nation: Climate Changes Health. Abstracts are due 2/20-24: <https://apha.confex.com/apha/2017/oasys.epl>

FY17 Climate Impacts Subcommittee plans listed in the FY 17 EJ IWG Draft Framework for Collaboration Priorities:

- Abstracts submitted for APHA and other conferences, including climate justice efforts with a public health focus Complete a proposal to hold a special session at the May 2017 National Adaptation Forum on the nexus of environmental justice and climate change.
- Holistic, systems-based Climate Justice Framework - Produce the all-federal framework on climate justice (layer 1); Produce the matrix of federal intersections with climate justice (layer 2); Publish frameworks as pdf for circulation among federal agencies and the public. FY18 - Create interactive infographic from framework as an on-line resource.
- Compiled list of communities focusing on climate-justice and their best practices and information used for community driven solutions – expand to include other Agencies beyond EPA; analyze information for use in Climate Justice Portal
- Climate Justice Portal - In the first quarter of FY17, the Subcommittee will draft and submit to NOAA the justification for a Climate Justice Portal on NOAA's Climate Resilience Toolkit website. If NOAA is amenable to the idea, the Subcommittee will begin the compile and transfer resources for posting on the site during the remainder of FY17. The process of updating information on the Portal will be an ongoing as needed process.

- Summary of Related International Efforts (e.g., WHO, UNEP PROVIA, USAID, World Bank Group) and initial assessment of potential leveraging/partnering opportunities

Thanks,
Valerie

Subject: EJ IWG Review of Goods Movement Cmte Resource Compendium

Greetings,

The Goods Movement Committee (GMC) of the EJ IWG is pleased to present you with its draft Goods Movement Federal Resources Compendium (Compendium). The final version of the Compendium will be a public-facing document and likely will be posted on the EJ IWG's Federal Resources webpage. The GMC requests your 'show-stopper' review of this document by January 23, 2017.

The Compendium (attached) is designed to provide low-income, minority, and tribal/indigenous communities, community stakeholders and other interested parties with comprehensive access to publically available federal resources (e.g., agency strategies, guidance documents, reports, funding mechanisms, data and assessment tools) that may be useful to communities adversely impacted by goods movement-related activities. Access to these publically available federal resources can equip and empower overburdened communities impacted by goods movement to build partnerships and improve conditions where they live, work, learn, and play.

The Compendium contains hyperlinks to federal resources the GMC identified as having a sufficient nexus to potential goods movement-related impacts on overburdened communities, including impacts from related infrastructure (e.g., ports, rail yards, highways). Nexus is the relationship between the potential goods movement-related impact and the relevance of the resource to a potentially affected community (e.g. the community's health, safety, quality of life, economic vitality, and meaningful engagement).

Although review of the entire document is welcome, we strongly suggest a focused review of your respective agency's section of the Compendium. Note that not all federal agencies have resources represented in the Compendium at this time. If your agency is not currently listed in the Compendium, we strongly encourage you to provide us with any publically available resources you'd like included. The GMC envisions the Compendium as a 'living document' with outdated links and additional resources being updated periodically.

The GMC does not anticipate this review being a particularly 'heavy lift' as the resources identified in the Compendium are all publically available. Please provide your: concurrence; concurrence with comment; non-concurrence; or abstention due to this not being applicable to your agency's mission by COB Monday, January 23, 2017. If you feel a publically available resource currently identified in the Compendium should not be included (i.e. a show-stopper) please provide the hyperlinked title of the document in question. If we have not received your response by the Jan. 23rd deadline, your silence will be deemed as concurrence with the document. All responses can be sent to Stan Buzzelle (buzzelle.stanley@epa.gov).

The members of the GMC wish you a safe and happy holiday season!

Best,
Stan

Subject: EJIWG Follow Up items

EJIWG Team,

Following up on our discussion last Thursday, please see the five items below.

- 1) The deadline for agencies to provide comments on the Draft FY16 Accomplishments Report is February 13th.
Please include:
 - Confirmation of Concur/Concur with comment/Do Not Concur
 - Information on Agency Achievements
 - Any committee changes or edits to the FY 17 Priorities

Please reply to Marsha Minter (minter.marsha@epa.gov) cc'ing Jeanine Finley (finley.jeanine@epa.gov).

- 2) As promised, here is the link to the website for the President's Task Force on Environmental Health Risks and Safety Risks to Children: <https://ptfceh.niehs.nih.gov/>. The Featured Resource is Key Federal Programs to Reduce Childhood Lead Exposures and Eliminate Associated Health Impacts, which was released in November 2016. The Task Force is now working on developing a new federal strategy to further reduce lead exposure in children's environments.
- 3) Also, as many of you know EPA communications with the public is still limited, if you can please share widely the attached Whole Community Disaster Planning flyer for the upcoming EJ IWG Access and Awareness Webinar on Feb 9th.
- 4) Notes from Thursday's meeting are attached.
- 5) I'll be sending another email prior to my departure.

Blessings,

Mustafa Santiago Ali
Senior Advisor to the EPA Administrator for Environmental Justice and Community Revitalization

Access & Awareness Webinar Series from the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG)

"Whole Community Disaster Planning: Inclusive Approaches to Recovery and Preparedness"

Thursday February 9, at 1:00pm - 2:30pm Eastern

Register Today

Description

In the wake of Hurricane Katrina and other recent catastrophes, community advocates and Federal, state, local, and tribal emergency managers began developing strategies for inclusive public engagement to improve disaster planning. Broad engagement can heighten individual and community resilience and deepen understanding of needs to better target limited resources.

In addition to improving access to information and services, effective community engagement can help identify important values, norms, community networks and relationships to inform and improve planning before and after incidents. Over time, inclusive disaster planning can lead to a broader understanding of local risks, needs, and capabilities; improved preparedness through the empowerment of community members; and, ultimately, more resilient communities.

Join this webinar to hear from local leaders on the ground. Learn how their efforts are supporting and strengthening community leaders, networks, and assets so that these resources can be leveraged to improve resilience, public health, and community access to information and resources. In addition, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, two of the federal agencies that work on short-term and long-term disaster recovery, will discuss federal efforts to support whole community disaster planning, and lessons learned during recovery from recent disasters.

EJ IWG Background

Established by Executive Order 12898, the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG) comprises 17 federal agencies and White House Offices that work together to guide, support and enhance environmental justice and community-based activities. Check out the EJ IWG Webpage for more information.

The EJ IWG is hosting the Access & Awareness Series, a monthly event, to provide public access to the working group and to increase community awareness of federal agency environmental justice strategies and holistic community-based solutions to address environmental justice issues. This series will help the public gain a deeper understanding of how federal agencies are collaborating and what resources are available to anyone interested in improving the health, quality-of-life, and economic opportunities in overburdened communities.

Established by Executive Order 12898, the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG) comprises 17 federal agencies and White House Offices that work together to guide, support and enhance environmental justice and community-based activities. Check out the EJ IWG Webpage for more information.

The EJ IWG is hosting the Access & Awareness Series, a monthly event, to provide public access to the working group and to increase community awareness of federal agency environmental justice strategies and holistic community-based solutions to address environmental justice issues. This series will help the public gain a deeper understanding of how federal agencies are collaborating and what resources are available to anyone interested in improving the health, quality-of-life, and economic opportunities in overburdened communities.

Upcoming EJ IWG Webinars

- Title: Women's History Month! Women and Environmental Justice
- Date: 3/09/2017
- Time: 1:00–2:30pm EST
- Purpose: This webinar will highlight the unique role that women have played in the environmental justice movement and the specific challenges they face.
- Register Here: <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/gender-and-environmental-justice-tickets-31463559353>

Subject: [epa-ej] Webinar: Women's Role in the Fight for Environmental Justice

Access & Awareness Webinar Series from the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG)

"Women's History Month: Women's Role in the Fight for Environmental Justice"

Thursday March 23rd, at 2:00pm - 3:30pm Eastern

Register Today

Description

In honor of Women's History Month, the EJ IWG is focusing on the central role women have played in the environmental justice movement along with the challenges still facing them today. Since the inception of the EJ Movement in the US, women have played a critical role in advocating for overburdened and underserved communities. Women have led the way in organizing their communities, churches, and schools to improve public health and revitalize local neighborhoods. Given the essential contributions of women to the EJ movement, it is vital that environmental justice practitioners begin to articulate environmental inequalities that specifically impact women and develop interventions to effectively target women.

In this webinar, we will lift up pioneering women who helped establish environmental justice within the Environmental Protection Agency and provide a framework to begin to understand some of the challenges that are facing women in the context of environmental justice. The webinar will also highlight organizations that are carrying out projects aimed at providing resources, training, capacity building and other assistance to women. Additionally, the webinar will discuss the representation of women in environmental organizations that are making decisions that impact overburdened and underserved communities.

Description

In honor of Women's History Month, the EJ IWG is focusing on the central role women have played in the environmental justice movement along with the challenges still facing them today. Since the inception of the EJ Movement in the US, women have played a critical role in advocating for overburdened and underserved communities. Women have led the way in organizing their communities, churches, and schools to improve public health and revitalize local neighborhoods. Given the essential contributions of women to the EJ movement, it is vital that environmental justice practitioners begin to articulate environmental inequalities that specifically impact women and develop interventions to effectively target women.

In this webinar, we will lift up pioneering women who helped establish environmental justice within the Environmental Protection Agency and provide a framework to begin to understand some of the challenges that are facing women in the context of environmental justice. The webinar will also highlight organizations that are carrying out projects aimed at providing resources, training, capacity building and other assistance to women. Greetings—KUDOS to all of you for your successful workshops at NEJC. Although I was not in attendance, I heard rave reviews!!!
I would like each of you to share a 5-10 minute synopsis of your workshop at the upcoming March 23 EJ IWG monthly meeting. I think the EJ IWG members would like to hear your observations/ lessons learned or any other information you would like to pass along.

If you would like some time on the March 23 agenda, please email me by noon on Monday (3/20) so I can finalize the agenda and send out by COB Monday. THANKS!

Access & Awareness Webinar Series from the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG)

"Partnership in Progress: Supporting Underserved Communities in Portland, Oregon"

Thursday, April 13th, at 1:00pm - 2:30pm Eastern

Register Here

Description

Environmental and public health impacts affect people most significantly where they live - at the community level. One of the themes of the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Strategic Plan for Fiscal Years 2014-2018 is to make a visible difference in communities across the country. These efforts are focused on providing better support to communities, especially in environmentally overburdened, underserved, and economically distressed areas where the needs are greatest.

In 2015, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has established a Portland Steering Committee and has identified opportunities, barriers, and resources, as well as implementable projects, associated with the following four focus areas:

- Equitable development in East Multnomah County, Oregon;
- Increasing green infrastructure in Portland;
- Capacity-building for environmental justice focused on reducing diesel fuel exhaust; and
- Development of a Portland Green Corps program for youth training and employment opportunities in different environmental career tracks.

Join this webinar to hear from the EPA's representative on the Portland Community Steering Committee. Learn more about the four focus areas and how the steering committee is working to leverage resources to support local communities in Portland. In addition, the U.S. Department of the Interior's (DOI) Regional Environmental Officer will discuss DOI's efforts to be more active in the area of environmental justice, as well as potential opportunities for collaboration.

Access & Awareness Webinar Series from the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG)

"Partnership in Progress: Supporting Underserved Communities in Portland, Oregon"

Thursday, April 13th, at 1:00pm - 2:30pm Eastern

Description

Environmental and public health impacts affect people most significantly where they live - at the community level. One of the themes of the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Strategic Plan for Fiscal Years 2014-2018 is to make a visible difference in communities across the country. These efforts are focused on providing better support to communities, especially in environmentally overburdened, underserved, and economically distressed areas where the needs are greatest.

In 2015, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has established a Portland Steering Committee and has identified opportunities, barriers, and resources, as well as implementable projects, associated with the following four focus areas:

- Equitable development in East Multnomah County, Oregon;
- Increasing green infrastructure in Portland;
- Capacity-building for environmental justice focused on reducing diesel fuel exhaust; and
- Development of a Portland Green Corps program for youth training and employment opportunities in different environmental career tracks.

Join this webinar to hear from the EPA's representative on the Portland Community Steering Committee. Learn more about the four focus areas and how the steering committee is working to leverage resources to support local communities in Portland. In addition, the U.S. Department of the Interior's (DOI) Regional Environmental Officer will discuss DOI's efforts to be more active in the area of environmental justice, as well as potential opportunities for collaboration.

EJ IWG Background

Established by Executive Order 12898, the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG) comprises 17 federal agencies and White House Offices that work together to guide, support and enhance environmental justice and community-based activities. Check out the EJ IWG Webpage for more information. The EJ IWG is hosting the Access & Awareness Series, a monthly event, to provide public access to the working group and to increase community awareness of federal agency environmental justice strategies and holistic community-based solutions to address environmental justice issues. This series will help the public gain a deeper understanding of how federal agencies are collaborating and what resources are available to anyone interested in improving the health, quality-of-life, and economic opportunities in overburdened communities.

If you have any questions, please contact Jeanine Finley for additional information.

Hi Joanna,

The only input I have is really a question. I'm not sure if the group wants to use "Interagency Working Group's Climate Change Sub-Committee", or "Educate Motivate Innovate Climate Justice Initiative", or simply "Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice" in the certificate?

Best,

Hi Joanna,

Here are a couple of potential questions for student feedback:

- Did the EMI experience fulfill your reason for applying?
- What was the most beneficial aspect of the conference you attended?
- Would you recommend EMI and the conference you attended to others?
- How many external conferences/seminars do you attend, on average, in a year?
- How did you share the knowledge gained at the conference with your fellow students at your home institution?
- Do you have any plans for follow up activities at your school?
- What suggestions do you have for improving the EMI experience for next year?

Hope this helps,
Alyssa

"Partnership in Progress - Community-Based Collaborations for Environmental Justice in Portland, Oregon"

Wednesday, May 31st, at 1:00pm - 2:30pm Eastern

Description

Environmental and public health impacts affect people most significantly where they live - at the community level. One of the themes of the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Strategic Plan for Fiscal Years 2014-2018 is to make a visible difference in communities across the country. These efforts are focused on providing better support to communities, especially economically distressed areas where the needs are greatest.

In 2015, the EPA established a community-based collaboration to identify opportunities, barriers, and resources, as well as implementable projects, to serve local communities in Portland, Oregon, who have traditionally not received attention in the past. This webinar will focus on the work and partnerships formed through this collaboration. Mary Lou Soscia, EPA lead on this work, will provide an overview of the development and facilitation of this group, and we'll hear from community partners about the work they've done to leverage resources in the following four focus areas:

- Equitable development in East Multnomah County, Oregon - Mary Lou Soscia (EPA)
- Increasing green infrastructure in Portland - Bobby Cochran (Willamette Partnership)
- Capacity-building for environmental justice focused on reducing diesel fuel exhaust ? Mary Peveto (Neighbors for Clean Air)
- Development of a Portland Green Academy for youth training and employment opportunities in environmental career tracks - Derron Coles, PhD (The Blueprint Foundation, DRC Learning Solutions)

In addition, we will learn about how the U.S. Department of the Interior (DOI) is becoming more actively involved in the area of environmental justice. DOI's Regional Environmental Officer for the Pacific Northwest, Allison O'Brien, will discuss the Department's efforts, as well as the expertise DOI bureaus have to offer. EPA's College/Underserved Community Partnership Program (CUPP) Manager, Michael Burns, who is currently detailed to DOI, will join the presentation to talk about the work he is doing to develop partnerships among agencies, schools, the private sector, nonprofit organizations, and underserved communities.

EJ IWG Background

Established by Executive Order 12898, the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice (EJ IWG) comprises 17 federal agencies and White House Offices that work together to guide, support and enhance environmental justice and community-based activities. Check out the EJ IWG Webpage for more information. The EJ IWG is hosting the Access & Awareness Series, a monthly event, to provide public access to the working group and to increase community awareness of federal agency environmental justice strategies and holistic community-based solutions to address environmental justice issues. This series will help the public gain a deeper understanding of how federal agencies are collaborating and what resources are available to anyone interested in improving the health, quality-of-life, and economic opportunities in overburdened communities.

Subject: [epa-ej] Community Webinar on Citizen Science Air Monitoring

Community Webinar on Citizen Science Air Monitoring

June 7, 2017 @ 1:00 - 2:30pm EST

On Wednesday June 7, 2017, the EPA Office of Air Quality and Planning Standards will host a webinar from 1:00-2:30pm EST on "Citizen Science Air Monitoring." This webinar will provide an overview of the tools that are used to conduct citizen science projects involving low-cost air sensor technology and educate communities on best practices for successful air monitoring projects.

The availability of low cost (less than $2,500) sensors has increased the popularity of citizen environmental data collection which allows community members to collect and analyze data and interpret the results. Many of the communities' projects have helped to solve complex real-world problems, identify research questions, and make new discoveries.

During this webinar, community representatives will also be on hand to discuss their community air monitoring projects and lessons learned. If you are interested in learning more about air sensor technology, study design, community air monitoring case studies, and resources available for conducting successful air monitoring projects, please review the webinar details to join.

Hello Erika,

Hope you are well, just wanted to let you know that we've had so much great feedback from your presentation.

As you know, I am the program coordinator for the Federal Interagency Working Group on Environmental Justice and after hearing about our webinar yesterday a few individuals really wanted to connect with you and GRID Alternatives. Through this email I would like to introduce you to Melinda Downing, Environmental Justice Program Manager at Department of Energy and also Lisa Stuart, Economist and Environmental Justice Coordinator at Department of Labor.
